

Doing business in Pattaya

The number of registrations of new businesses has risen significantly over recent years as an increasing number of overseas investors have been exploring and exploiting business opportunities in Thailand. The country's economy enjoyed healthy growth until the recent global "downtown", but Pattaya, along with most of the rest of the world, is presently experiencing a slowing down in the pace of economic activity.

This fact alone should not, however, deter a shrewd investor. It is now an established part of conventional wisdom that business and investment opportunities may be even more attractive in the long run, if the investment is made at a time when the economy is "cooling". As always in business, whether you are an established business person, or a budding entrepreneur, it is a case of identifying the right opportunity in Pattaya and then working hard to bring your plans to fruition. We commend you to consider choosing and establishing the right business structure, which most appropriately suits your needs, as being analogous to laying down the foundations of a new house.
